

Five to seven year-olds across the borough have plenty to celebrate after the DfE ranked Hackney as 'outstanding'; Shoreditch Park Primary School pupils let off balloons (above)

BEST IN COUNTRY

HACKNEY schoolchildren's performance is amongst the very best in the country, according to new figures released by the Department for Education (DfE) this month.

The borough is ranked first in England for Key Stage 1 results – with five to seven year-olds reaching the expected standard in reading, writing and maths – and the borough's seven to 11 year-olds in the top five for performance at Key Stage 2.

At GCSE level, the borough is now ranked joint first in the country, based on a new measure which looks at the progress children make from the end of primary school to age 16.

Hackney's success includes those from lower income backgrounds, with children eligible for free schools meals ranking second in the country for reading and writing, and third in maths, outperforming children nationally who aren't eligible for free school meals.

Children with an Education Health Care Plan are also in the top five in the country for all of the three core subjects, ranking fifth in reading, and fourth in both writing and maths.

The DfE has rated Hackney as 'outstanding', and above London and national figures on all attainment measures.

Anne Canning, Hackney's Group Director for Children, Adults and Community Health, said: "These are amazing results that show just how far Hackney has come in education. We are very proud of all the children, their parents and guardians, and teachers in the borough who have played a part in this. This really does prove that Hackney schools are among the very best in the UK.

"The success of every child is important, but we are particularly delighted to see results that show children from lower income families and with special education needs are not being left behind. That is testament to Hackney's focus on making sure every child can reach his or her full potential, and those values are shared across the Hackney family of schools."

In other education news, pupils at Shoreditch Park Primary School (pictured), formerly known as Whitmore School, also had plenty to celebrate after the school boosted pupil attainment and adopted a new look, new name and smart new uniform.

Urgent repair works need to be carried out on London Fields Lido, from November till next spring

London Fields Lido to close for repairs

LONDON Fields Lido is set to close from the end of November until next spring, while urgent repair works are carried out.

Earlier this year, tiles started to crack and come away from the pool wall. As a result, temporary barriers were installed to protect swimmers and allow the lido to remain open throughout the busy summer period.

Tests carried out by industry specialists identified a problem with the screed layer between the pool tank and the render holding the tiles, and subsequently confirmed that all the tiles, screed and render will need to be removed and replaced.

“We have decided to take advantage of this unavoidable closure to refurbish the indoor changing rooms”

During this period, the lido will have to be closed.

Over the last two years the Council has also been looking at options to improve the lido by modernising facilities to meet the expectations of swimmers. As a result, the Council will use the closure of the lido for repairs as an opportunity to improve indoor changing rooms and the main reception area.

Cllr Jon Burke, Cabinet Member for Energy, Sustainability and Community Services, said: “Although we are disappointed at being forced to close the lido for urgent repairs, we have decided to take advantage of this unavoidable closure to refurbish the indoor changing rooms and reception area.

“This means swimmers will be able to enjoy better, more modern facilities when the lido reopens next year.”

Pre-paid members will be able to continue swimming – at no additional cost – at Britannia, Clissold and Kings Hall leisure centres. Members will also be able to swim at the London Aquatics Centre in the Olympic Park, Charlton Lido, and any other swimming pool managed by Better.

Members will also be able to use the new health and fitness facilities in Queensbridge Sports and Community Centre throughout the closure.

Memberships can be frozen or suspended during the closure of the lido.

Pride of Mama Hackney

Janette Collins, founder of Hackney youth project The Crib, has made it to the finals of this year's Pride of Britain Awards

A DEDICATED youth worker, known as 'Mama Hackney', has made it to the finals of this year's Pride of Britain Awards, after devoting her life to steering young people away from drugs, gangs and crime.

Janette Collins, founder of youth project The Crib, was nominated for a TSB Community Partner Award, one of eight categories in the nationwide awards. She and the other finalists attended a reception at the House of Commons on 11 October.

"I'm delighted that Janette is a finalist. The judges were... impressed with the way she works with young people"

Paul Pester, CEO of TSB, said: "I'm delighted that Janette is a finalist. The judges and I were incredibly impressed with the way she works with young people in Hackney. We introduced the TSB Community Award to celebrate ordinary people who do extraordinary things, working as a force for good in their local communities, and Janette is a perfect example of that."

Janette founded The Crib in 1999 and has been running it ever since. Based in De Beauvoir, young people can get help with a range of things from CVs and housing applications, to an advocate for a court hearing.

The Crib also organises residential trips and skills workshops, and runs 'Trading Places' schemes in which police and young people act out each others' roles to explore issues including stop and search.

Janette is also the driving force behind Boroughs United, the annual cross-borough talent show that aims to break down postcode rivalries.

She told Hackney Today last year: "I cuddle every single one of my kids, no matter how big they get. We want to bring back trust in communities and we stand for family."

News in brief

Fireworks tickets up for grabs

RESIDENTS can still get tickets for this year's Hackney Fireworks Show on Saturday, 5 November.

The event, set to be a stunning spectacle of pyrotechnics synchronised to music, is back at Clissold Park, in Stoke Newington, for the third year running.

This year's theme is 'animals', and residents are encouraged to channel their wild side and dress up as their favourite animals – be it Simba from 'The Lion King', Shere Khan from 'The Jungle Book' or just a cheeky monkey.

The fireworks have been specially tested to ensure the welfare of the animals in the park; they are low noise so all wild things will have an enjoyable experience on the night.

Tickets cost £7.50 for adults and £2.50 for children who live in the borough; and £8.50 and £3.50 respectively for non-residents. Gates open at 5.30pm and the display starts at 7pm. To buy tickets, visit: www.hackneyfireworks.eventbrite.co.uk

Sign up to an adoption event

PEOPLE who think they can give a loving home to children of Caribbean and African heritage, as well as siblings and children with complex needs, are invited to an adoption information session at Hackney Picturehouse on 20 October, from 6pm to 8pm.

The event, to coincide with Black History Month, is being held by Adoption North London, a consortium of six North London boroughs, including Hackney.

It will include a presentation on the adoption process and existing adopters will share their experiences.

Have your say on draft guidelines for improving Hackney town centre

The masterplan includes proposals for new pedestrian routes through Hackney Central

THE Council is calling on residents and businesses to help shape the future of Hackney town centre.

Main points for discussion in the draft Hackney Central masterplan include relocating Clapton Bus Garage to create new workspace, retail space and homes, and creating new pedestrian routes in the town centre.

The Tesco site in Morning Lane is another area highlighted. It explores options for redeveloping the site to feature new retail space, including a supermarket, workspace and homes.

Other proposals include expanding the public square at the bottom of the Narrow Way; improving Hackney Central Overground station; and redeveloping some Council-owned sites, including a Hackney Housing depot at Florfield Road, to provide workspace and homes.

The masterplan will give developers a set of guidelines to work within. Affordable housing is an important part of the guidelines and future development will be expected to meet the Council's affordable housing requirements alongside provision of low-cost workspace.

For more info, or to have your say, visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/spd; or call: 020 8356 1318 by 14 November. Alternatively, attend drop-in sessions in Narrow Way, 20 October, 2-5pm; Hackney Central Library, 1 November, from 10am-1pm; and Mare Street, junction of Westgate Street, 10 November, 3-6pm.

There are many ways for the borough's over 50s to get involved in Connect Hackney

DID YOU KNOW?

Connect Hackney media group member Laurie Allen (above) gives the thumbs up to the vast array of projects available to the over 50s in Hackney; Connect Hackney chair Shirley Murgraff (inset) gives out achievement certificates to volunteers

Connect Hackney

YOU may not have noticed, but there's a shake-up of services going on in Hackney. And it is led by the over 50s.

In 2014, the Big Lottery Fund's Ageing Better programme invited organisations to bid for a share of £78million. The brief was to reduce social isolation among older people. Organisations representing almost 100 areas in England applied.

Just 14 were successful, including one from Hackney. In fact, Hackney CVS – which provides advice and support to voluntary and community sector projects – was awarded £5.8million, to be spent over the next five years. But how best to do that?

The charity decided to ask the experts, which is how, last September, hundreds of older residents voted on the projects they thought would be most effective at bringing the over 50s together to socialise and have fun.

These are now running under the umbrella of Connect Hackney.

Matt Bray, Hackney CVS' Communications Director, said: "Connect Hackney offers a fantastic range of projects for residents aged 50 and over, from befriending projects in the Orthodox Jewish community to the Hackney art project for LGBT people."

Connect Hackney chair, Sarah Salem, added: "I would like as many people as possible to get involved. I have not stopped since I joined. I'm keeping busy and it's keeping me so well."

The projects are:

Head to Whitechapel on 5 February for tales of Jack the Ripper and the Krays

The Clissold Park walkers meet outside Clissold House cafe, N16, each Tuesday, at 1pm

Walkingtogether provides a programme of free walks starting from different locations across Hackney – and the capital – and aims to get people outdoors, doing gentle exercise

Nordic Walks start and finish at the bottom of Springfield Park by Leaside Trust, Spring Lane, E5

Walk that walk

These boots are made for walking – so join the Council's Walkingtogether programme and get fit

ACCORDING to NHS recommendations, we should all aim to walk 10,000 steps a day. Do it briskly, and you'll burn around 400 calories. The trouble is, most of us only manage between 3,000 and 4,000.

That's where Walkingtogether comes in. A programme of free walks starting from different locations across Hackney, it aims to get people outdoors, exercising gently and improving their health. The walks vary in length and difficulty and are suitable for all ages. All you need to take part is a pair of comfortable shoes. Remember: those boots are made for walking...

Nordic Walking

It might look a little unusual, but the Nordic Walking technique of using poles to exercise the whole body is highly effective. Using 90 per cent of the skeletal muscles, it burns up to 46 per cent more calories than ordinary walking.

It can even lower the risk of chronic illness and is an ideal form of exercise for those with joint problems or wanting to tone muscle and lose weight.

Walks start and finish at the bottom of Springfield Park at Leaside Trust, Spring Lane, E5 9HQ. The group departs at 2pm and finishes at 3.15pm, every Wednesday, between 16 November and 7 December. Walking poles are provided.

Weekly walks

Every week, walks take place in parks across the borough. Varying in length from half an hour to an hour, they are run by trained leaders and are great ways to meet new people and socialise, as well as exercise.

The Clissold Park walkers meet outside Clissold House cafe (N16 9HJ), each Tuesday, at 1pm. Led by Rita Saha, they go for an hour-long walk, of moderate intensity around the park.

London Fields walkers, on the other hand, meet on the steps of Hackney Town Hall (E8 1EA), on Wednesdays, at 12.15pm. Under the guidance of Lynne Thorburn, they stroll for 45 minutes at a moderate pace.

Walking is one of the easiest ways to be more active, lose weight and get healthier

Hackney Downs walkers meet at the park's pavilion, E5, at 11am on the second Thursday of every month

Walk around Hoxton on 11 March to learn about pleasure gardens and radical politics

Monthly themed walks are also taking place from this November through to March next year in areas across London

Monthly walks

Did you know that Hackney Downs was first preserved as parkland back in the 1860s? Or that it is an impressive 40 acres in size? Every second Thursday of the month, a walk takes place around the park, so you can explore all of this. The group meets at the park pavilion (E5 8NP), at 11am, and goes for a slow paced, 30 minute stroll led by Cliff Gully.

If that inspires you to take a step in the right direction, there's more. Monthly themed walks are taking place from November through to March next year. As well as good exercise, these are organised in order to explore the history of a new area, starting and finishing within easy reach of public transport to make things easier, and led by a knowledgeable guide.

Each walk begins at 11am and takes one-and-a-half hours to complete. Just remember to book as places are limited.

Kings Cross is the destination for the first walk of the series, which takes place on 19 November. Walkers will be invited to explore connections with historical and fictional figures from Harry Potter to Queen Boudicca.

Next up it's Westminster, walking past iconic sights including Big Ben and the Houses of Parliament on 10 December. Hear how Winston Churchill fears no pigeon...

On 29 January, the walk winds its way to Wapping, home to sailors, pirates and boatloads of maritime history. Then it's off to Whitechapel on 5 February for tales of Jack the Ripper and the Krays, before working its way to Hoxton on 11 March for pleasure gardens and radical politics.

Finally, on 18 March, the walk returns home to Green Flag award-winning Springfield Park. Once occupied by the Romans and Saxons, today it is home to a wide range of wildlife. So go on, take a walk on the wild side...

Hackney

Hackney is one of the most diverse places in the UK. In this regular feature, we profile the borough's great & good or just plain interesting

'I try to put myself in their shoes and remember who I was at their age'

Brenda Campbell has been fostering Hackney children for 24 years, and has no intention of retiring from the job any time soon

By Harriet Worsley

WHEN the Council held a masquerade party earlier this year to celebrate the amazing work done by its foster carers, there were awards for those who had been in the job for five, 10, 15 and 20 years. And then there was Brenda Campbell.

"I've been fostering Hackney children for 24 years," she says with a smile. Adding: "I suppose that is a long time, but it's flown by."

It is a particularly long time, however, when you consider that she had a whole other career before setting out on that path.

"I was born and raised in Barbados," says Brenda. But at the age of 19 she took the brave decision to move across the world to Yorkshire in pursuit of a career in nursing.

She explains: "I had a cousin there, but when I arrived I wanted to go straight home again, it was so foreign and so cold!" Instead, she gritted her teeth, applied to a hospital and became a nurse.

Decades later, she was to show the same resolve in her first weeks as a foster carer. Brenda recalls: "It was 1991 and I was living in Haringey. A woman I knew asked me whether I would be interested in fostering. She worked for Hackney Council and had seen the way I used to play with all the kids on my estate. They called me 'Aunty Brenda'."

Interested by the idea, Brenda agreed. Six months later, the first child was placed in her care. She says: "The child had been badly abused and was so sadly damaged. It was hard work, but it was a challenge. I dealt with it, with the support of my social worker."

“One little girl came to me at two and a half and left at 19. She still comes home to visit”

It certainly didn't put her off. Some 24 years on, and aged 70, she is still fostering children from Hackney.

"I have now fostered 15 children in all," she reflects. Adding: "Some come just for respite. Others come for four weeks and end up staying for years. One little girl came to me at two-and-a-half and left at 19. She still comes home to visit me, and now she brings her own little girl. That makes me so very happy."

Other children, now grown up, come back to visit her too. "I am cooking lunch for one of my boys this Sunday," she chuckles. Adding: "He always finds time to visit when he's in the area, and it's usually timed about right for a Sunday lunch."

In the two-and-a-half decades in which she has been fostering in the borough, the job has changed considerably.

Brenda reflects: "New standards have been brought in, new training introduced. But it's for the best. You learn so much in this job. I've had a lot of good training and it makes you feel really valued."

These days, it is no longer young children who are placed with her but teenagers. Brenda continues: "They often come with their own issues and challenges, but I try to put myself in their shoes and remember who I was at their age and what I wanted from life then. I get a lot of support from social workers and my fellow foster carers."

Still, caring for teenagers requires energy. "The kids keep me going as I get older. I have to keep going to the gym so that I can keep up with them!" she laughs.

Brenda has no intention of retiring from the job soon. "I'll stop when I'm ready," she says. Adding: "Right now, it is still rewarding. My favourite thing is being there for the children when they come home from school."

"I love watching them do well at their studies. Even if they go back to their parents shortly after, it's great being part of it as they grow up into good people."

Flagging up green space

HACKNEY has celebrated its largest ever haul of Green Flag awards at a ceremony at Woodberry Down Park.

The Mayor of Hackney, Philip Glanville, led the celebrations on 30 September, after the borough received 21 Green Flags, which recognise the best parks and open spaces in the country.

Mayor Glanville said: "This is a truly fantastic achievement and demonstrates the quality of green spaces across the whole borough and reflects the high standard of work parks staff undertake each day,

"The awarding of two new Green Flags for Mark Street Gardens and Woodberry Down Park demonstrate the determination of staff to continue raising the quality of our green infrastructure."

The award celebration was then followed by the official opening of Spring Park, also on Woodberry Down estate. It was designed in consultation with residents and features a new state-of-the-art children's play area.

Children from Woodberry Down Primary School were guests of honour at the event and claimed the title of the park's first official visitors, by taking part in a treasure hunt and trying out the new play apparatus.

Man fined £500 for fly-tipping

A MAN has been fined £500 for dumping an entire flat's worth of rubbish on a Hackney street.

Tomas Dobias had cleared a home on behalf of a managing agent after a tenant had moved out. The clearance, including furniture, appliances, carpets and glass, was dumped on the Nightingale Estate instead of being taken for disposal.

Council enforcement officers investigated the fly-tip and traced it to Dobias, who admitted the offence, accepted a formal caution, and paid a £500 fine on 14 September. Rubbish from construction, DIY or landlords is classed as commercial waste and has to be removed by a licensed waste carrier.

Residents who witness fly-tipping should report it at: hackney.gov.uk/fly-tipping; or call: 020 8356 4504.

Zero food waste scheme launch

A PROJECT that aims to turn Hackney organisations into 'zero food waste heroes' was launched on 14 October, with a feast created entirely from food that would otherwise have been binned.

The charity Plan Zheroes works to create networks of businesses, volunteers and transporters in order to make it easy for food businesses to donate surplus food to charities that need it.

Plan Zheroes has launched a borough-wide pilot programme, which kicked off with an event at Hackney House on 14 October. Local food businesses, charities and volunteers met to eat, network and learn how Plan Zheroes' innovative model is getting high quality food to charities, and how those charities are benefitting from it. For more info, or to sign up, e-mail: gemma.carr@planzheroes.org or visit: planzheroes.org

Help bring back the hedgehog to Hackney with some simple gardening tips

Hedgehogs love leaves to make their nests

THE number of hedgehogs in the UK has fallen by 30 per cent in the last 10 years, and in Hackney there have been no recorded sightings since 2002.

Hedgehogs are most commonly spotted in parks and gardens, where bushes and hedges provide the perfect day-time getaway, and insect-rich lawns and flower beds make excellent feeding grounds at dusk.

But, unfortunately, many gardens in Hackney have been gravelled over or fenced shut, making safe passage for hedgehogs impossible. In order to flourish, they need to be able to roam far and wide in search of food, mates and nesting sites.

As a result, The Wildlife Trusts federation is asking people to join forces with neighbours to cut a 13x13cm hole in their fences, or dig a channel beneath boundaries to connect gardens.

The Trusts also advise that fallen leaves make the perfect nesting material, so pile these up in undisturbed corners of the garden to allow hedgehogs a safe, secure area to breed and hibernate. For more info, visit: www.wildlifetrusts.org/hedgehogs

Jonny Woo's Un-Royal Variety

4 Nov, Hackney Empire, 291 Mare Street, E8 1EJ

DIG out your bling, throw on a crown and head down to Hackney Empire for a night of very 'un-royal' variety. Alt drag superstar Johnny Woo is back after his sell-out 'Gay Bingo' show, and he's bringing the cream of London's alternative cabaret scene with him.

Billed as 'an anarchic queer take on the annual Royal Variety Show', Jonny Woo's version sees him collaborate with an eclectic roster of artists including operatic drag icon Le Gateau Chocolat and Richard Thomas, the composer behind 'Jerry Springer the Opera'.

Between the star turns, Jonny will step in with satirical songs including a 10 minute 'Brexit – The Musical'. But be warned: these are not acts you'll see performing for the Queen...

ART &
EXHIBITIONS*DIALOGUE WITH EMPEROR
QIN*Until 28 Oct, various opening times

This touring exhibition features 31 internationally renowned sculptors. The 28 European and three Chinese artists created life-size sculptures inspired by the First Emperor of China's terracotta army. The works form a new peace army, dedicated to sharing ideas between cultures. The world tour began in China and pit stops in London before ending in Brussels early 2017. Free. All ages. The Press Centre, Here East, Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park, E20 3BS. Info: www.inspiringculture.com/

SALT PANSUntil 29 Oct

Two solo exhibitions by Canadian artist, Edward Burtynsky open at this Hoxton gallery. 'In 'Salt Pans', Burtynsky conveys the unsettling reality of depleting resources on the planet through a series of geometric compositions photographed from the air above the Little Rann of Kutch in Gujarat, India. Mounted in the upper gallery 'Essential Elements' comprises a selection of photographs weaving an evocative journey through Burtynsky's past projects, drawing together the visual relations that connect throughout his work. Free. All ages. Flowers Gallery, 82 Kingsland Road, E2

8DP. Info: 020 7920 7777; www.flowersgallery.com/exhibitions/view/edward-burtynsky-essential-elements

SAVE YOURSELVES*Until 31 Oct, 9am-5pm

Save Yourself celebrates the art and the artists who have personal and emotional connections to the Hackney Wick area. Many of these artists have gone on to become some of the most prolific street artists of our time and this gallery show gives an insight into this unique community past and present. As buildings are doomed for demolition, subsequently so is the rich heritage of urban art in East London. "Is there now anything left to save, apart from ourselves?" is the theme. Free. All ages. Stour Space, 7 Roach Road, Hackney Wick, E3 2PA. Info: coby@stourspace.co.uk; www.stourspace.co.uk/portfolio/save-yourselfes-october-2016/

ZERO hours contracts, glass ceilings, internships and gender pay gaps form the backdrop to Hackney Showroom's latest theatrical world premiere.

Called 'Starting Out', the performance is actually composed of five new plays by five of the UK's most exciting female playwrights. Janice Connolly, Charlene James, Lorna Laidlaw, Manjeet Mann and Susie Sillett each interviewed real women before creating their own piece of political theatre, examining the realities faced by young women entering the workforce in 2016. At once humorous, disturbing and moving, the five plays work together to investigate the human stories behind the big issues, and ask how and why some people are handed better chances than others. 'Starting Out' is playing at Hackney Showroom from 19 to 22 October. Tickets start at £10.

Shoreditch Park Primary School, formerly known as Whitmore School, has changed its name and uniform after transforming its results

New-look primary school

A SHOREDITCH primary school has been transformed, and taken on a new look, a new name and a smart new uniform.

Shoreditch Park Primary School, formerly known as Whitmore School, suffered from low attainment rates, was struggling, and required improvement.

But after much hard work by staff, the school has been turned around, and is now rated 'outstanding' by Ofsted.

At a celebration on 7 October, to mark the

“ We want to put the message out to local people that we are an outstanding and inclusive school ” school's re-branding, pupils launched hundreds of balloons into the sky, celebrating the school's progress over the last five years.

Headteacher Penny Smith said: "We want to put the message out to local people that we are an outstanding and inclusive school, rooted in the community, which is now reflected not only in our school name, Shoreditch Park Primary, but in everything we do."

The school was renamed after its location to emphasise the local roots. New uniforms have also been developed in a royal purple with green edging.

Pupil Melanie, 11, said: "I really like my school, it's a calm place that's fun. I love wearing the new school uniform as it's really smart and the new name makes so much sense because we're right next to the park."

News in brief

Youth Parliament hustings

CANDIDATES standing in the forthcoming Hackney Youth Parliament (HYP) election have set out their plans for change at a series of hustings events.

The budding politicians presented their manifestos to fellow young people, councillors and members of the public ahead of polling. Candidates discussed apprenticeships, training and jobs, as well as the need for young people to get involved in politics.

There are 43 candidates standing for HYP in two constituencies: Hackney North and Hackney South. Each constituency is allocated 12 members.

Voting takes place in schools and youth clubs across the borough, and closes on 19 October. The results will be announced at Young Hackney Forest Road the next day.

Those who would like to attend the event should e-mail: tom.sheppard@hackney.gov.uk; or call: 020 8356 7650. A full list of candidates can be found at: www.younghackney.org

Family Learning Festival returns this half term with free activities for all

The festival is designed for adults and children to take part together

RESIDENTS are being encouraged to book themselves onto free workshops and activities this half term as part of the Family Learning Festival.

The free festival takes place from 24 to 29 October in locations across Hackney. The theme is 'wonderful world', to get families inspired by the joy of learning.

The courses aim to provide a good introduction to learning for adults and build their confidence in supporting children's learning.

Activities include jewellery making for the over fives; fun family fitness for children aged eight to 14; upcycling clothes for the over threes; a forest school taster for the over threes; making soft toys for families with children aged two and over; a quilt workshop for the over fives; hair braiding for fours and over; and henna designing for families with children aged three and above.

The courses are designed for adults to learn alongside their children. Any adult with a child in their care is welcome, but adults cannot attend on their own. Free crèches are also available for some of the activities.

For more info, or to book a place on a free workshop or activity, visit: www.learningtrust.co.uk/familylearningfestival

Nicky Clarke attended a 'Street Is Not The Only Option' football match at Mabley Green with personal trainer TJ to get more young people playing sports

On the pitch, off the street

By Dila Tumer

HAIR stylist to the stars Nicky Clarke presented prizes at a Hackney event designed to get young people off the streets and onto the playing field.

Nicky watched from the sidelines on 1 October at the 'Street Is Not The Only Option' event at Mabley Green, E9, as his personal trainer, TJ Mbye, launched a new initiative to get more young people playing sports.

Nearly 100 young men,

“The Olympics left a huge imprint on this part of the city, and we can take advantage of this”

aged between 16 and 40, took part in a competitive football tournament, which lasted four hours.

Hackney resident TJ's personal experiences made him keen to set up a scheme that keeps young people off the streets, giving them an opportunity to build up their confidence and sporting skills while having fun. He said: "Growing up in East London, there was nothing much going on around here before the London 2012 Games.

"The Olympics left a huge imprint on this part of the city, and we can take advantage of this by channelling the energy of young people into positive things like sport.

"Street crime in London is still a huge issue, but tackling this with football rather than violence is what this programme is all about."

TJ hopes that the event will be the first of many.

He added: "All I can pass on to young people is that all its takes is to put yourself out there, and you will find something that you love and are able to focus on."

News in brief

Inspiring young black men

YOUNG men from across Hackney attended an inspirational careers event as part of the borough's Black History Season.

Over 35 students from Cardinal Pole Catholic School, E9, and The Petchey Academy, E8, attended the event at Young Hackney's Forest Road Youth Hub.

Twenty three local professional men and entrepreneurs, of all ages and from ethnic minority backgrounds, shared their stories and offered informal career advice in their fields of expertise, in a bid to motivate and galvanise young men. The guest speakers included a comedian, music producer, police officer and company directors. Joel Agyeman, from Cardinal Pole School, said: "It has made me think about the decisions that I make today and will make soon. I feel really inspired for my future now."

The young audience listened to speeches and took part in discussion groups to talk informally with all the speakers. Funmbi Omotayo, a Black Entertainment Comedy award-winner, got a warm reception from the audience, and lots of laughs from the young people.

He said: "I grew up in Hackney, it's nice to give back to the young people from your local area who are now coming up after you."

Young people give visual expression to their disabilities

A GROUP of Hackney teens gave visual expression to their physical disabilities with the help of a creative project developed for young people.

The 'We Need To Talk' photography project, which ran throughout the summer, is for teenagers who have various disabilities such as cerebral palsy, spina bifida, spinal cord injury and arthrogryposis.

The scheme culminated with an exhibition on 28 September at Hackney Ark, E8.

Catherine Lomas, Transition Physiotherapist, said: "In the first stages of the project, the young people attended education sessions to learn more about their diagnosis and to have the chance to meet with other young people with physical disabilities.

"The second part of the project then focused on the use of photography as a medium for the young people to communicate their thoughts about their disability, with the aim of using the images produced as a platform to educate others about some of the challenges they face.

"The young people selected their best photographs and accompanied these with messages that they wanted to communicate most to the local community."

A new health and fitness programme by Leyton Orient Trust encourages schoolchildren to get more active and learn about the importance of nutrition

By Dila Tumer

STUDENTS from Princess May Primary School are set to experience a unique programme to encourage them to be more active.

Leyton Orient Trust has joined forces with the charity English Football League Trust to deliver a primary schools' programme, set to be rolled out across Hackney, that encourages children to take part in physical activity, while also helping them to understand the importance of a balanced diet.

The +Sport Move and

“It's vital that we educate children from a young age on a healthy diet and encourage an active lifestyle”

Learn Project, by Ferrero, is designed to encourage active lifestyles, and has already reached 15million children worldwide.

Childhood obesity is a growing problem and the prevalence of obesity in Hackney is amongst the highest in England.

Over six weeks, Year 5 students from the Dalston school will spend 45 minutes in the classroom learning about the body, nutrition and the importance of exercise, through interactive activities.

The second half of the 90-minute session will be dedicated to playing football, dodgeball or handball, with two weeks spent on each sport.

Leyton Orient player, Robbie Weir, said: “It's vital that we educate children from a young age on a balanced diet and encourage an active lifestyle. The +Sport Move and Learn Project is a really fun and interactive project and it's great that children from Hackney will now also get the chance to take part.

“I'm extremely proud to be able to support such an important programme.”

There are still spaces available for schools to join the free health programme.

News in brief

Volunteer with charity Headway

A HACKNEY charity is recruiting volunteers to help them in their work with survivors of complex brain injury. Headway East London, one of the UK's leading charities supporting those affected by brain injury, wants applications from people who have one day a week to spare. Working alongside staff, volunteers will help to run activities and, equally importantly, spend valuable time with their members.

Volunteer Coordinator, Tasneem Aziz, said: “Volunteers are absolutely vital to the work we do at Headway East London. It's always great to see the friendships that are made across the kitchen counter, or in the art studio as members and volunteers come together.”

Learning to break the cycle

A NEW service aims to tackle the rising rates of HIV and STIs among gay and bisexual men in the borough.

The 'breaking cycles' group is the brainchild of the Terrance Higgins Trust, the UK's leading HIV and sexual health charity. Funded by the Council's 'Healthier Hackney' initiative, it encourages men to understand their triggers and cravings for drugs and alcohol, as well as helping them to manage anxiety and develop resilience in a safe, non-judgemental environment.

Ben Tooke, London Group Work Coordinator at the charity, said: “This unique combination of peer and therapeutic support is a brand new way to help break behaviour cycles and improve wider sexual health in Hackney.”

Free cooking courses and low cost fitness classes available throughout Hackney

Learn to cook for free and get fit for just £1

FREE cook and eat courses and fitness classes for £1 are now open to residents thanks to the Council's

One You programme.

The One You classes take place in over 20 community centres, churches and libraries across Hackney. They run alongside a national Public Health England campaign to encourage people to get fitter, eat healthier and feel better.

The Community Kitchen programme is a free six-week cook and eat course, where budding chefs can improve their skills and boost their confidence to prepare tasty, healthy, affordable meals while meeting new people.

The fitness classes cost just £1 (or a donation) and are aimed at children, adults and families who need to turn up and fill in a brief registration form.

Classes include box-fit; body conditioning; chair-based fitness; capoeira; fit to tone; fitness circuits;

judo; legs, bums and tums; pilates; yoga; taekwondo; and Zumba.

Some centres also offer a crèche facility for an additional £1 or donation.

For more info on all of the classes, locations and timings, visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/healthy-hackney; e-mail: henry.muss@hackney.gov.uk; or call: 020 8356 6326.

The Mayor and councillors

Councillors are elected by residents and serve for four years. The last borough-wide elections took place in May 2014. Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee Council services.

They hold advice surgeries where residents can meet their local representative and ask them to take up issues of concern. Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, councillors can often point people in the right direction and tell residents who they need to see. Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – see map below.

MAYOR PHILIP GLANVILLE

Hackney's executive Mayor Philip Glanville, was directly elected by the borough in September 2016. He is the political leader of the Council, overseeing the budget and all Council services. The Mayor holds monthly casework surgeries in the Town Hall. To book an appointment, email: mayor@hackney.gov.uk; or call: 020 8356 3220. Residents are first encouraged to contact their ward councillor. Civic and ceremonial duties are undertaken by the Speaker of Hackney who is chosen annually from the borough's 57 councillors. The current Speaker is Cllr Rosemary Sales.

Working towards a Stamford Hill Area Action Plan -community drop-in Hackney Council is developing an Area Action Plan for Stamford Hill; this is a key document that will help guide future investment and planning decisions in the neighbourhood.

The Council has been researching local needs and talking to people from the area to find out what the key planning issues are in Stamford Hill. The issues identified so far include: housing, open space, transport, local shopping centres, the local economy, education, public health and social and leisure facilities.

Before we consult on a draft Area Action Plan, we are holding two drop-in events where residents can come in to discuss the issues identified so far and get an update on the next steps. Once the Area Action Plan is drafted, we will be inviting residents to take part in further consultation.

There are two sessions to make sure as many people as possible can attend:

Thursday 3 November – Stamford Hill
Community Centre, Stamford Hill Estate,
London N16 6RS 5.30pm – 8.30pm

Sunday 6 November - Oak Tree Community
Centre, 77 Bethune Rd, London N16 5ED 10.30am – 2.30pm

If you have any questions before the meeting, please call Sue Cooke, AAP Project Manager at Hackney Council on 020 8356 7740.

Recipes inspired by the Eat Hackney Cookbook

www.eathackney.com/cookbook

Eat Hackney Cookbook features 30 great recipes from restaurants, cafés and community projects in Hackney. Proceeds go to the Hackney Migrant Centre and North London Action for the Homeless, who feed 100 vulnerable people each week in the borough.

THIS issue's recipe is inspired by the Eat Hackney Cookbook, which features recipes from around the world. Its sale raises funds for two small local charities which work to feed the homeless and vulnerable: the Hackney Migrant Centre and North London Action for the Homeless. The cookbook costs £5, with all funds going to the charities. For more info on where to buy a copy, visit: eathackney.com

Beetroot & walnut hummus

Serves 6-8

Preparation time
15 mins

Cooking time
0 mins

THIS vegan and gluten-free recipe comes from social enterprise Growing Communities, which is based at The Old Fire Station, 61 Leswin Road, N16 7NX.

Ingredients

- 50g walnuts
- 1 tbsp cumin seeds
- 220g beetroot, cooked (but not in vinegar)
- 1 tbsp tahini or smooth peanut butter
- Garlic clove, sliced finely
- Juice of a lemon
- Olive or rape seed oil
- Salt to taste.

Method

- Dry-roast the walnuts in a frying pan for 5 mins until fragrant, then dry-roast the cumin in another pan
- Blitz the nuts in a processor until a fine crumb
- Add the beetroot, tahini, most of the garlic and cumin, half the lemon juice and a little salt. Blend to a thick paste. Taste and adjust flavour to suit, adding salt and a little oil to loosen the mixture if required
- Delicious served with raw, vegetable crudites or chunky bread. The hummus keeps in the fridge for a few days.

Growing Communities is a not-for-profit social enterprise working to take food back from the supermarkets and into the hands of local communities and farmers.

It offers an organic fruit and vegetable box scheme and has created a Patchwork Farm in Hackney, where it grows produce for their ultra-local Hackney salad bags.

Have your say on Dalston Lane (West) Conservation Area

THERE is still time to have your say on a revised boundary to Dalston Lane (West) Conservation Area and a new draft conservation area appraisal for central Dalston.

The proposed new conservation area boundary will include significant buildings that make up Hackney's industrial past in and around Ashwin Street.

The Council has also prepared a draft appraisal, as part of the proposals, which describes and analyses the character of the Dalston Lane (West)

Conservation Area.

To have your say on the revised boundary, or comment on the draft conservation area appraisal, visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/dalston-lane-west-ca; or call: 020 8356 8106 until 31 October.
